THE MOM COMEBACK KIT By @momworkbabyrepeat - Recruiter for Working Moms

PAGE 1: RESUME SUMMARY FORMULA FOR MOMS

STOP using "Objective". Use this 3-Line Formula:

FORMULA:

Line 1: [Your role] with [X years] experience in [industry/function]

Line 2: Recently completed [course/certification/freelance project] during career break

Line 3: Now seeking to bring [key strength] back to a full-time/hybrid role

3 EXAMPLES:

For HR/Admin:

HR Professional with 5 years experience in recruitment and employee engagement. Recently completed an HR Analytics certification during a 2-year career break. Now seeking to bring stakeholder management skills back to a full-time HR role.

For Content/Writing:

Content Writer with 4 years experience in B2B and lifestyle content. Recently completed a Content Strategy course and freelanced for 2 clients during career break. Now seeking to bring storytelling and SEO skills back to a hybrid content role.

For Finance/Accounts:

Finance Professional with 6 years experience in accounts payable and reconciliation. Recently completed an Advanced Excel and Tally certification during career break. Now seeking to bring accuracy and process discipline back to a full-time finance role.

TIP: Don't write "Career Gap." Write "Career Break for Upskilling."

Q: "Why this gap in your resume?"

WRONG ANSWER:

"I had to stay home because of my kid, there was no one to manage, so I couldn't work."

RIGHT ANSWER (use this script):

"I took this time intentionally to focus on my family during my child's early years. During this period I also completed [course/certification] and stayed current with [industry trend]. I'm now ready to commit fully to my career again, and this break gave me clarity on the kind of role and company culture I want to be part of."

3 KEYS:

- No apology - frame it as a choice
- Show upskilling - course, cert, or freelance work
- End with commitment - "100% committed"

BONUS LINE if they ask about kids:

"I have reliable childcare support in place, so my availability and focus at work won't be affected."
